

CONTENTS.

PREFACE, . . . . .	Page 18
--------------------	------------

BOOK I.

ON METHOD.

CHAPTER I.

ON THE DISTINCTION BETWEEN POLITICAL ECONOMY AND TRUE POLITICS, . . . . .	27
Inductive and deductive reasoning, . . . . .	28
Legislation must have limits, . . . . .	34
The object of political economy, . . . . .	36
The object of politics, . . . . .	37
Political economy cannot treat of property, . . . . .	40

CHAPTER II.

THE LORD AND THE SERF, . . . . .	42
The two extremes, . . . . .	42
The gradual transformation, . . . . .	44
The final result, . . . . .	45
Propositions on change, and the means of making it, . . . . .	46

CHAPTER III.

THE QUESTION FOR SOLUTION, . . . . .	51
Government by rule, or government by will.—Rights an- terior to laws, . . . . .	54
Man and the earth—liberty and property, . . . . .	59
Anterior principles on which laws should be founded, . . . . .	60
Scripture legislation, . . . . .	62
NOTE.—On Scripture legislation, and the three laws of benevolence, justice, and benefit, . . . . .	69

	Page
CHAPTER IV.
ON THE DISTINCTION BETWEEN THE ABSTRACT AND THE
INDUCTIVE SCIENCES, AND CLASSIFICATION OF THE
ABSTRACT SCIENCES, . . . . .
The formation of science, . . . . .	76
The abstract sciences, . . . . .	80
 CHAPTER V.
ON DEFINITION, . . . . .	87
The fundamental noun substantive of politics, . . . . .	94
Issac Taylor and Cousin quoted, . . . . .	96
 CHAPTER VI.
ON THE AXIOM, . . . . .	99

BOOK II.

ON DOCTRINE.

CHAPTER I.

FACTS, PRINCIPLES, AND PROBABLE FACTS RELATING TO
MAN, THE AGENT INVOLVED IN POLITICAL SCIENCE, . . . . .
Man a moral being, and responsible for his actions, . . . . .	105
Difference between an offence against God, an offence against the church, and an offence against society, . . . . .	108
Progression, modern and ancient, . . . . .	112
The evolution of history, . . . . .	114
Free-will and necessity, . . . . .	115
The causes of pauperism, . . . . .	117
The province of legislation, . . . . .	119
Permanency of moral law, . . . . .	121

CHAPTER II.

DEFINITIONS.

SECT. I.—Definition of Man, and Jural Equality of the Individual
Members of the Human Race, . . . . .
The universe not merely mechanical, . . . . .	124
Existence of will , . . . . .	126
Definition of man, . . . . .	127
Equality of human rights, . . . . .	130
Equality of human rights, . . . . .	138

CONTENTS.

vii

	Page
Answer from Scripture, reason, and observation,	133
The office of reason,	136
What equality means,	142
SECT. II.— Definitions ,	146
Politics,	146
Distributive, corrective, and retributive justice,	147
The word ought ,	147
Duty, crime, right, wrong, property,	149
Value,	154
Liberty,	155
Powers of performance, pleasure and pain, interference and law,	156
SECT. III.— Axioms ,	157
Axioms relating to action. Axioms relating to property,	158
Postulates,	159

CHAPTER III.

PROPOSITIONS.

Proposition 1.—That all men are equal in natural rights,	160
Proposition 2.—That a man has not a right to do every- thing,	161
Proposition 3.—That men have a right to do something,	162
Proposition 4.—To find the equitable limit of action,	163
Proposition 5.—No majority of men may equitably in- terfere with a minority, or with a single individual,	164
Proposition 6.—Society can contain only those rights which belong to the individuals composing society,	164
Note to Propositions 4, 5, 6,	165

CHAPTER IV.

ON THE FORMATION OF THE STATE, AND THE RIGHT OF THE MAJORITY,

Origin of the right of legislation,	169
The objects of legislation,	172
The primary end of legislation,	173
The secondary end of legislation,	174
The two classes of State servants,	175
The Book of the Law,	177
The Book of the Constitution,	178
The Book of the Statutes,	180

	Page
The right of election, . . . . .	181
Theory of a deliberative assembly, . . . . .	184
The laws of justice and benefit, . . . . .	189
The right of the majority, . . . . .	191
Probability based on human judgment, . . . . .	202
Curious fact regarding representation, . . . . .	204
The law of great numbers, . . . . .	206
Use of statistics, . . . . .	209
The essentials of political science—life, liberty, and property, . . . . .	211
Essential object of association, . . . . .	216
Non-interference the perfection of justice, . . . . .	219
What are statistics ? . . . . .	220
On the word utility , . . . . .	225
Different kinds of knowledge, . . . . .	231

CHAPTER V.

ON PROPERTY.

The general theory of property, . . . . .	245
The axiom of property, . . . . .	249
The theory of progression, . . . . .	250
Postulate, . . . . .	251
Suppositions regarding property, . . . . .	253
The theory of rent , . . . . .	261
Definitions of rent from Whately, . . . . .	261
Attempt to solve the mystery of rent, . . . . .	264
The fallacy of Malthus and his school, . . . . .	266
The foundation fact of economy, . . . . .	268
Theory of logical metamorphosis, . . . . .	271
Theory of rent explained, . . . . .	274
Rent is the natural profit of human labour , . . . . .	275
How does rent originate ? . . . . .	277
Rent depends on the whole labours of the whole community, . . . . .	287
Hypothetical calculations, . . . . .	293
Who creates the value of the soil ? . . . . .	302
Operation of crown grants, . . . . .	311
The rent of the soil should belong to the Nation, . . . . .	318
Advantages of the same, . . . . .	323

SEPARATE DISSERTATION.

Page

MORAL DYNAMICS; OR, THE GENERAL THEORY OF HUMAN ACTION, WITH THE APPLICATION OF THAT THE- ORY TO EXISTING INSTITUTIONS, . . . . .	381
Criticism of Archbishop Whately's proposition, that "There is a presumption in favour of every existing institution," . . . . .	382
Reduction of all dynamic theory to the axiom, "Every change must have a cause," . . . . .	384
Application of this axiom to mind, . . . . .	387
The four categories, . . . . .	388
Operation of the axiom in each of the four categories, . . . . .	370
The institutes of nature, . . . . .	398

---

ACCOUNT OF ANDREW YARRANTON, THE FOUN- DER OF ENGLISH POLITICAL ECONOMY, . . . . .	402
Andrew's book and its many titles, . . . . .	408
Who Andrew was, . . . . .	406
His foreign observations, . . . . .	407
How to beat the Dutch without fighting, . . . . .	407
Trade and war—Flanders, . . . . .	409
Venice and Genoa, . . . . .	412
Causes of the fall of Venice, . . . . .	415
Holland—its origin, . . . . .	417
Heeren's opinion on the navigation laws, . . . . .	418
The requisites of national prosperity, . . . . .	420
Condition of the English landed proprietor in the reign of Charles II., . . . .	422
How, on the other hand, the Dutchmen managed, . . . . .	424
Paper in Holland as good as money in England, . . . . .	425
Andrew's idea of a bank, . . . . .	427
Linen, iron, and wool, the three great trades of England, . . . . .	429
The German spinning school, . . . . .	431
The modern doctrine of political economy, . . . . .	432
Andrew's advice, " Import the skill ," . . . . .	433
The iron trade, . . . . .	434
The woollen trade, . . . . .	438
" Import the machinery ," . . . . .	438
The draper and the clothier, . . . . .	439

	Page
Cheap transit—the rivers, . . . .	445
Banking, trade, and navigation, . . . .	447
Cheap bread and drink, . . . .	448 .
Andrew the founder of protection , . . . .	449
Adam Smith quoted, . . . .	452
Employer and employed, . . . .	453
Self-imposed taxation, . . . .	454
The New Forest—Mr Buckingham's model town, . . . .	455
Fourier's industrial parallelogram, proposed in England more than a hundred years since, . . . .	458
To what does England owe her progress ? . . . .	462
Individuality of character and individual patriotism, . . . .	464