

C O N T E N T S .

---

INTRODUCTION.

	PAGE
PRELIMINARY EXPLANATION OF THE NATURE OF POLITICAL SCIENCE, . . . . .	15

CHAPTER I.

ON THE ELEMENTS OF HUMAN PROGRESSION.

SECTION I.

Remarks on the Matters involved in Political Science, . . . . .	31
Liberty and Property, . . . . .	33

SECTION II.

On the Mode in which Men have made Laws, . . . . .	37
Liberty of thought, speech, publication, and action, . . . . .	37
Restrictive laws, . . . . .	41
The game laws, &c., . . . . .	42
The excise laws, . . . . .	48
Taxation of labor, . . . . .	50
Indirect taxation, . . . . .	52
Customs and excise, . . . . .	53
Unlimited legislation, . . . . .	55
Its gradual limitation, . . . . .	56
Legislation for thought, . . . . .	56
Sectarian legislation, . . . . .	57
Immutability of justice, . . . . .	58
Legislation beyond its province, . . . . .	59
Change of laws—result, . . . . .	60
Freedom of expression, . . . . .	62

The censorship, . . . . .	63
Despotic power—its means, . . . . .	64
Combinations, . . . . .	66
Religious liberty, . . . . .	67
Reaction under pressure, . . . . .	69
The people and the rulers, . . . . .	70
Despotism and superstition, . . . . .	71
Change of conditions, . . . . .	73
Free intercourse, . . . . .	74
Retrogression of Spain, . . . . .	75

SECTION III.

The Combination of Knowledge and Reason, . . . . .	76
The Bible, . . . . .	77
Causes, . . . . .	80
Demonology, . . . . .	82
Popish miracles—Popery, . . . . .	84
Persecution of witches, . . . . .	86
Patriotism, . . . . .	86
Mercenaries, . . . . .	87
The turning-point of modern times, . . . . .	88
Inductive reasonings, . . . . .	90
Mental philosophy, . . . . .	92
Ethics, . . . . .	93
Revelation, . . . . .	94
Correct credence, . . . . .	95
The Bible, . . . . .	96
Natural phenomena—social laws, . . . . .	97
Induction, . . . . .	100
Dogmatism and scepticism, . . . . .	102
Philosophy, . . . . .	106
The method of Bacon, . . . . .	107
Gradual circumscription of philosophy, . . . . .	109
Common credence—primary knowledge, . . . . .	110
Science and philosophy, . . . . .	112
Ontology, . . . . .	113
Criticism of knowledge, . . . . .	114
Form and matter of knowledge, . . . . .	116
Evolution of freedom, . . . . .	119

Conditions of freedom, . . . . .	122
Credence, . . . . .	124

SECTION IV.

The Use and Operation of the Combination of Knowledge and Reason,	125
Man's moral imperfection, . . . . .	126
Evils of injustice, . . . . .	127
Political association, . . . . .	128
The progress of society, . . . . .	129
Use of combination, . . . . .	130
Change of credence, . . . . .	131
Negro slavery, . . . . .	132
Emancipation of the Negroes, . . . . .	133
Anti-slavery combination, . . . . .	135
Predicted evils, . . . . .	136
True character of Negro emancipation, . . . . .	137
The tax of the twenty millions, . . . . .	139
The corn laws, . . . . .	139
Repeal of the corn laws, . . . . .	147
The slave and corn laws, . . . . .	149
The argument of justice, . . . . .	153
The argument of benefit, . . . . .	155
Moral force, . . . . .	156
The end of progression, . . . . .	157
The origin of progress, . . . . .	158
Means of progress, . . . . .	159
Propositions on the operation of knowledge, . . . . .	160

CHAPTER II.

ON THE THEORY OF MAN'S INTELLECTUAL PROGRESSION.

SECTION I.

The Order of the Sciences, . . . . .	168
The sciences, . . . . .	170
The categories, . . . . .	171
The modes, . . . . .	172

Nature, knowledge, language, . . . . .	172
The forms of reasoning, . . . . .	174
The growth of the sciences, . . . . .	178
The process of science, . . . . .	184
Man science, . . . . .	193
A millennium, . . . . .	198
Order of the sciences, . . . . .	201
Dependence of the sciences, . . . . .	203
Evolution of the sciences, . . . . .	204
The marks of a science, . . . . .	205
Present position of the sciences, . . . . .	206

SECTION II.

Determination of the Character, Position, and Boundaries of Political Science, . . . . .	220
§ I. General observations, . . . . .	220
Political science, . . . . .	221
§ II. The province and position of political economy, . . . . .	229
Its position, . . . . .	234
Its object, . . . . .	235
The welfare of man, . . . . .	238
Growth of economy, . . . . .	239
A natural system of political economy, . . . . .	240
Laws of nature deranged by man, . . . . .	243
The ultimatum of political economy, . . . . .	244
§ III. The province and position of politics proper, . . . . .	246
Truth progressive, . . . . .	247
Politics proper—its position, . . . . .	249
Socialism and communism, . . . . .	250
Character of political relations, . . . . .	252
Justice the foundation of political society, . . . . .	254
Essential character of political society, . . . . .	257
Posterior limit of political science, . . . . .	259
Position of politics proper, . . . . .	262

CHAPTER III.

ON THE THEORY OF MAN'S PRACTICAL PROGRESSION.

SECTION I.

Outline of the Argument, that there is a natural probability in favor of the Reign of Justice,	263
A reign of justice, or political millennium,	264
Order of knowledge,	266
Correct knowledge produces correct action,	268
Correct action produces the beneficial condition,	270
Anticipation of a political millennium,	272
Influence of Christianity,	276
The millennium of Scripture,	278
The millennium of nature,	280
The revelation through nature,	282
Natural truth — divine,	283

SECTION II.

The Influence of Science on Man's Terrestrial Condition,	284
Sensation and reason,	285
Reason posits power,	286
Astronomy, geography, navigation,	288
Measurement of time,	289
Application of mathematics,	290
Mechanics and locomotion,	291
Machinery, chemistry, and electricity,	293
The soil and its productions,	295
Tenure of land,	296
Drainage,	298
Improvement of domestic animals,	299
Empirical and scientific physiology,	301
Extension of human life,	305

SECTION III.

Application of the Theory of Progression to Man's Political Condition,	306
Pauperism,	307
Condition of Britain,	310

Origin of pauperism, . . . . .	313
The radical evil, . . . . .	315
The two parties, . . . . .	316
The two questions — liberty and property, . . . . .	317
Right of representation, . . . . .	319
Social science, . . . . .	320
Method of science, . . . . .	321
Arbitrary determination of crime, . . . . .	326
What is a crime? . . . . .	327
Crime and property, . . . . .	328
Property and land, . . . . .	335
Major and minor of political science, . . . . .	338
Law measured by justice, . . . . .	340
Supremacy of justice, . . . . .	343
Law versus legislation, . . . . .	344
Universality of justice, . . . . .	345
Definition of crime, . . . . .	347
Serfdom and aristocracy, . . . . .	348
Deterioration of man, . . . . .	355
Liberty and property, . . . . .	355
The lord and the serf, . . . . .	357
Equality in the eye of the law, and in the scheme of the state, . . . . .	359
Perpetual supremacy of justice, . . . . .	369
Disposition of the soil, . . . . .	370
Equality in the eye of the law, and in the scheme of the state, . . . . .	372
Property in the soil, . . . . .	378
The feudal system, . . . . .	384
Conversion of arable into pasture, . . . . .	398
Enclosure of commons, . . . . .	400
The politics of landed property, . . . . .	401
The gradual evolution of truth, . . . . .	412
A theoretic ultimatum, . . . . .	413
The classes of society, . . . . .	414
The practical man and the theorist, . . . . .	415
Final propositions on the end of progression, . . . . .	419

CHAPTER IV.

BRIEF OUTLINE OF AN HISTORICAL SKETCH, BEING AN ATTEMPT TO APPREHEND THE SENTIMENTS OF THE HUMAN MIND WHICH HAVE RULED SOCIETY, AND TO APPRECIATE THE PSYCHOLOGICAL DEVELOPMENT OF MAN THROUGH HISTORIC MANIFESTATIONS, . 421

Theories, . . . . .	422
The papacy and the feudal system, . . . . .	423
War feudalism, . . . . .	424
The feudal constitution of society, . . . . .	424
The equitable constitution of society, . . . . .	426
Causes of war, . . . . .	427
The trader, . . . . .	428
War feudalism and parchment feudalism, . . . . .	429
The trader and the feudal system, . . . . .	433
The feudal lords, . . . . .	434
War, pleasure, and policy, . . . . .	438
Trade, . . . . .	440
The period of barbarous war, . . . . .	441
The period of knightly war, . . . . .	442
The period of court pleasures, . . . . .	443
The period of court policy, . . . . .	444
The occupations of the ruling classes, . . . . .	451
War, pleasure and policy, . . . . .	451
The policy system, . . . . .	454
Political economy, . . . . .	455
The equity system, . . . . .	458
Historic summary, . . . . .	459
Historic development of man in the state, . . . . .	460

CONCLUSION.

Ultimate knowledge—unity of credence, . . . . .	462
A valid natural theology, . . . . .	464
Growth of theology, . . . . .	471
Substance, infinity, and power, . . . . .	473

Design, . . . . .	474
Intelligence, intelligent design, . . . . .	476
Possibility of moral theology, . . . . .	478
Gradual evolution of a genuine natural theology, . . . . .	482
Man's fallen nature, . . . . .	485
Revelation, . . . . .	487
Theology, strictly scientific, . . . . .	488
Present position of natural theology, . . . . .	491
Dependence of natural theology on natural science, . . . . .	494
Ultimate effects of scientific knowledge, . . . . .	496
Christianity the main cause of human civilization, . . . . .	497
Truth restored to man, . . . . .	499

APPENDIX.

On the Classification of the Sciences, . . . . .	501
---	-----