

F. C. Leubuscher Is Dead; Henry George School Trustee

ESSEX FELLS, N. J.—Frederic Cyrus Leubuscher, 81, an intimate friend of Henry George and a lifelong advocate of George's social and economic doctrines, died on August 18 after a two months' illness.

Mr. Leubuscher was vice-president of the Board of Trustees of the Henry George School, and a trustee and director of the Robert Schalkenbach Foundation, Inc., of which he was one of the original organizers. He was formerly president of the Manhattan Single Tax Club.

Mr. Leubuscher was the son of Louis Leubuscher, a participant in and later a refugee from the German revolutions of 1848-1849 and a soldier in the American Civil War, and Catherine Horner Leubuscher. He was born in New York City, attended the public schools, City College and Columbia University Law School. He began practicing law in 1884 and was active in his profession until his recent illness.

Ever since participating in George's campaign for the mayoralty of New York in 1886, Mr. Leubuscher continued to play an active role in the movement to bring about a Georgist reform of society. Despite his advanced age he retained faith in the ultimate success of the cause. He took especial interest in recent years in the work being done by the Henry George School.

Lo! here, now, in our civilized society, the old allegories yet have a meaning, the old myths are still true. Into the Valley of the Shadow of Death yet often leads the path of duty, through the streets of Vanity Fair walk Christian and Faithful, and on Greatheart's armor ring the clangng blows. Ormuzd still fights with Ahriman—the Prince of Light with the Powers of Darkness. He who will hear, to him the clarions of the battle call.

How they call, and call, and call, till the heart swells that hears them! Strong soul and high endeavor; the world needs them now. Beauty still lies imprisoned, and iron wheels go over the good and true and beautiful that might spring from human lives.

And they who fight with Ormuzd, though they may not know each other—somewhere, sometime, will the muster roll be called."
