
Who's Who in Georgism

Lancaster M. Greene

Lancaster M. Greene, investment counsel and president of Lancaster & Norvin Greene, Inc., 30 Broad Street, New York, securities brokerage house, was interested in fundamental economics and in the Henry George School by George L. Rusby, insurance broker of Newark, N. J., and veteran Georgist, who has brought many young men into the movement.

Mr. Greene was born in Rochester, N. Y., Feb. 21, 1901. He was educated in the Rochester public schools and Williams College. At high school he excelled in scholarship; at college he was active in the glee club, and at skiing and soccer.

After employment in banks during college vacations, he became a bond salesman for E. Naumburg & Co. in 1923, and, afterward, for the New York Empire Company, later the Metropolitan Securities Company. He established his own firm in 1927. He is a member of the Young Men's Board of Trade, Zeta Psi fraternity, the Zeta Psi Club of New York and the University Glee Club.

He is an instructor of the Henry George School of Social Science and a director of the Robert Schalkenbach Foundation. He attended the last international conference at London of the International Union for Land Value Taxation and Free Trade as a delegate of the School.
