

Boston Enrollment Up Fifty Percent

BOSTON, Mass.—Two hundred twenty-six students enrolled for the October classes in "Fundamental Economics and Social Philosophy." This is an increase of 50% over a year ago. Classes are in session in Boston and nine neighboring cities: Arlington, Brookline, Cambridge, Dorchester, Malden, Medford, Newton, Somerville and Winchester. Analysis of how the students were attracted shows the following interesting results: 35% enrolled as a result of 6,500 postal cards mailed a week before the opening dates; 33% came from personal recommendations of former students. Newspaper stories in Boston and local papers brought in 27% of the registration, which reflects to the credit of the Boston extension's new chairman of the Publicity Committee, Harold J. Power.

One advanced class, conducted by John S. Codman, dean of the Boston faculty, opened Friday evening, November 3, at Doll & Richards Gallery 138 Newbury Street, Boston. It will be recalled that Mr. Codman was a co-founder with Francis G. Goodale of the Boston extension. The advanced class has 17 students; it is open to graduates of the "Progress and Poverty" classes and designed primarily for those who desire to take an active part in the education of the public in the principles of Henry George.

Much of the success of the Boston extension is due to the efficiency and devotion of its secretary, Mrs. Francis G. Goodale.
