date this year. At the primaries the nomination was captured by a Tory, Timothy Hogan, present attorney general of the State. The Republican nominee, while about equal to Hogan in most things, exceeds him in one respect. He makes no false pretense of democracy. The candidate of the Progressive party, Arthur L. Garford, is not so well known, but seems by far the best entitled to democratic support of the three.

Advantage of Direct Primaries.

Direct primaries this year give voters a chance to quiz candidates for nomination as well as election. Quizzing, however, should not be confined to promises for the future. In the case of present members seeking to be returned, questions regarding the past offer better opportunities. This especially applies to the action of members, claiming to be democratic and progressive, on measures that should have had the support of every congressman opposed to privilege.

Among these measures may be mentioned the amendment to the Alaska government railway bill proposed by Congressman Bailey of Pennsylvania. Had that been adopted the money spent for building the road would have been returned to the people through a tax on land values in Alaska. The amendment was defeated by a vote of 126 to 27. The vote on this measure affords an excellent test of a candidate's democracy. Let those seeking renomination be asked how they voted, if they did not dodge, and why. Another good test is afforded by the vote on the George bill reforming the assessment system of the District of Columbia. As introduced it would have abolished gross favoritism in assessments in the District. The bill was first loaded down with hostile amendments, which were finally eliminated and then the original bill was rejected. Candidates should be allowed a chance to explain. Then, again, there is the Crosser bill to municipalize the street railway system of Washington. Although favorably reported on by the District Committee it has not been allowed to come to a vote. Here is another chance. A bill providing for retention by the federal government of title to radium bearing lands was amended into an unrecognizable shape and made useless. These are but samples of a number of tests offered to congressmen to prove their democracy. they relate to matters not mentioned in party platforms they better enable a voter to gauge the ability of a member to pass on the merits of a measure without help of a party declaration.

Among others whose position on the measures mentioned might be ascertained is Congressman Stringer of Illinois. As the principal candidate for the Democratic senatorial nomination against reactionary Roger Sullivan, it is important that progressive Democrats know to what extent he represents them. Was he one of the 27 who voted for the Bailey amendment? Did he vote for the passage of the George bill in its original form? What has he done to help the Crosser bill? Did he oppose amendment of the radium conservation bill? Mr. Stringer should make these matters clear, not only that voters at the primaries may know to what extent he differs fundamentally from Sullivan, but also that they may judge how he measures up to the democracy of Raymond Robins, who will be his opponent at the general election, should Sullivan be defeated.

Mexico Still in Danger.

The Constitutionalists of Mexico have now such an opportunity as comes too rarely to leaders in a great cause. A revolution to free the land has met with sufficient success to put in control those who have led it. But that is only half the battle. The revolutionists have won against physical force. They have yet to win against cunning. It is inspiring to hear that in Northern Mexico the workers on the farms are this year for the first time getting the entire product of their labor. This is what one year of freedom from landlordism has done. It is now the task of the government to keep the land free. It can not do so by dividing it into small holdings. It can only do so by making it unprofitable to hold land for any other purpose than to put it to its most productive use. There is only one sure way of doing this under modern civilized conditions. Holders of land should pay to the state its full annual rental value, exclusive of the value of improvements. This ground rent should pay all public expenses. There should be no taxes whatever on industry or its products. Under this system there will be no holding of large tracts of land in an unused or partially used condition. Yet, to prevent the new government from adopting this system there will be no lack of cunning efforts. Plutocracy will work on well meaning but poorly informed officials to secure substitution of futile devices. Herein lies the greatest danger to the new government and to the final success of the revolution. Vigilance is still needed in Mexico to secure its dearly bought liberty.

JUDGMENT TIME FOR "CROWNED CRIMINALS."

The poor enslaved masses of Europe dare not speak, so let us speak for them. Those whose wretched bodies are today food for cannon are dumb, but the crimson streams that flow from their lacerated flesh shall run crying "Mercy!" to all the children of men. Those wounds, poor, poor, dumb mouths, now ope their ruby lips to beg the voice and utterance of the tongues of men, and this speaking calls for the demolition of every rotten throne and vengeance upon the crowned hellions who use men as pawns and nine-pins.

Let us not forget that we, too, have stalking about our land a "robustious, perriwig fellow," whose blatant tongue cries for increased armament upon American shores and armed vessels to sail the seas.

Let us blush that we have two members of the cabinet of a peace-loving President base enough to ask that our army and navy shall be increased in efficiency and power until their strength shall awe the world.

At this moment, however, the advocates of this infamous doctrine are silent. With Europe's streams running red with blood; with her industries languishing; with already weeping orphans and widows in despair; with the achievements of a half century of peace scattered to the winds and civilization set back a thousand years—surely that doctrine reeking with the bloody filth from deep, dark pits of shame, has received its deathblow. For let us not forget that all these nations have pursued that savage policy. For decades these nations, under the lead of the "war lord" of Germany, have been preparing for peace by increasing and perfecting the implements of war. Let us remember the infamous lie and fully know that to increase armaments and amass munitions of war is the greatest incitement to war. That is the inevitable effect of the policy of the war gods.

Oh, shame! Oh, infamy unspeakable! Outrage infinite!

Is not this treachery of crowned heads of no concern to us? Does it not menace our peace, our health and our prosperity? Do we not pay for it, as well as must the enslaved masses of Europe who for a hundred years to come shall groan under the heavy load?

The answer is already seen in the increased cost of our living that was already distressing. It is seen in the ruination of our import trade—a calamity (to all but the protective tariff advocate, who is not supposed to see very much of anything that requires thought). But worse than these, it is seen in the black cloud that enshrouds the mind of the world.

Yet, let us not despair. It was Emerson who said, "Every thought thrown into the world will modify the world." So let the democratic spirit of the world center its power of thought upon the idea that when another decade shall have passed into history every detested crowned head of Europe shall have disappeared. I would not speak as Cromwell did of Charles I, "We shall take off his crown and with the crown his head, but rather in that more civilized speech of the aged Conventionist in Les Miserables, "I would vote the death of the king, but not the man."

Yes, I believe this horrible world catastrophe will awake a world-democracy that shall over-throw every crowned head, and over the portals of the federation of nations shall inscribe the rights of man. If this horror cannot arouse the Spirit of Democracy to such achievement, what in the name of righteous heaven can do it?

However, if such be not accomplished, the world will, at least, as a lesson learned from this dark day, agree upon universal disarmament. Therefore let not America indulge in the dangerous folly of increasing hers.

THE GLORY OF CONQUEST.

During long and bloody centuries following the discovery of America, the English-speaking people and their descendants have succeeded in doing two very wonderful things; namely—they have tamed the buffalo and civilized the Indian. It has been a long, wearisome, home-breaking, heart-breaking, murderous process, but it seems to have been successful, from at least one point of view; that is, it has succeeded, and nothing is thought to succeed like success, though the measure of the commodity differs very greatly in the opinions of different persons.

If you do not believe that the buffalo is tamed, go to the few zoological gardens of the world in which that noble animal is now confined and see if the remnants of his race are not thoroughly subjugated. You look through the bars that would hardly hold a good Holstein bullock, and there you find this monarch of the plains, tamed and con-
