

Thank you for the Social Science Forum on reshaping Eastern Europe. The Lincoln Institute of Land Policy is currently planning a joint program with the American Institute of Economic Research to give a program in land use and land taxation to a small group of Russian scholars. To some degree this is synergistic with your Social Science Forum. The program is experimental and we have not yet focused on what the follow up would be. We do realize that one program will not get the job done and there has to be a continuum at some level.

One editorial comment on the Social Science Forum. I assume the American economist was Henry George but this is not made real clear in the entire paper and particularly not in the first paragraph or two.

I hope things are going well with you.

Sincerely,
